CROWD COURT FOR AIRING OF BUTLER CASES

Villagers, School District's Residents on Hand as Judge Hears Assault Charges.

3 WITNESSES HEARD

School Board Members Say They Were Beaten By Trio During Pupil Strike.

Nearly 100 Butler residents jammed the municipal courtroom in Mansfield today as three prominent residents of the village and Worthington township went on trial for an alleged assault on Kinsey Morgan and Rupert Roberts, Butler board of education members, Feb. 6 during a protest strike at the school over the brief dismissal of Supt. Willard S. Weekley.

The hearing was recessed until 1 p. m, after Morgan and Roberts and one of their witnesses, Ira Morgan, testified that the two board members were beaten and dragged from the cab of a pick-up truck the morning of the strike.

Accused of the assault are Clarence G. Tugend, former county school board member; Archie Stevens, Worthington township trustee, and his brother, Raymond Stevens.

On the witness stand for nearly an hour before noon, Morgan testified that Tugend and the Stevens brothers approached the truck as the two board members sat in it near the school building, struck the board members in the head with a hammer, and their fists, and then dragged them out into the street.

Morgan said Tugend apparently was the leader of the group, although he said Tugend did not strike him at any time. The board member related that "Tugend grabbed at my hand, then took my wrist and with the help of another man pulled me out of the truck." He was unable to identify the "other man" who grasped one leg as Tugend held his wrist.

Morgan also was unable to identify the member of the trio who swung the hammer at the board members' heads from close range as the alleged attacker reached in the window of the truck cab and struck them from behind. He told the court "it looked like Raymond Stevens' arm."

Morgan said he was able to get the hammer away from the attacker and hold onto it until he was pulled out of the truck.

Cool Courage of Sailors on Doomed Destroyer Revealed

(By Associated Press)

CAPE MAY, N. J.—Cool courage under fire, which prompted them to return to their sinking ship in an effort to save more of their mates, was revealed today in the stories of 11 survivors of the 1,200-ton World War Destroyer Jacob Jones, torpedoed off Cape May just before dawn last Saturday.

More than 100 men, including all officers, were lost when two torpedoes from a lurking U-boat, fired within 15 seconds of each other, sent the 23-year-old destroyer to the bottom.

As she slipped beneath the waves an hour after the attack, her depth charges exploded. Sailors clinging to life rafts, were blasted into the sea and were drowned.

The navy did not disclose the exact casualty list A destroyer of the Jacob Jones class, however, normally carried seven officers and 125 to 150 men.

It was the first naval vessel known to have been lost in Atlantic coastal waters since the war began, and the first in American history known to have been sunk so close to her home shores It was the ninth American warship announced sunk during the war in the Atlantic or Pacific

The 11 survivors, nine engine room enlisted men and two apprentice seamen, were picked up after drifting on life rafts in a

WILL RESIGNS CIVIL SERVICE

Attorney Quits In Second Change In City Board During Week.

The second change in the personnel of Mansfield's Civil Service commission took place today when James V. Will, Mansfield attorney and secretary of the board, resigned due to "the press of business"

Earlier Frch F. Huber had declined reappointment by Mayor W. J. Locke and W. C. Mansfield, local realtor, was named to the commission by Locke to serve in Huber's place.

Locke said that he received Will's resignation this morning and stated that it came as a "surprise." Asked if he would accept it, the mayor replied, "I can't do anything else." He added that he would appoint a successor to Will.

The mayor waited aproximately 60 days to take action in regard to Huber. The latter's first term appointment expired Dec. 31, but Locke waited until the deadline Saturday to offer Huber a re-appointment.

Informed by Locke by telephone that a letter of appointment was being, mailed, Huber said he told the mayor, "Don't bother to send it," adding "I don't care to take the job." Huber said that his work at the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company kept him busily occupied

Will, in resigning from the board, said that his work as a member of the advisory board of Draft Board 1 and his private practice demanded his time.

MAC ARTHUR'S AIRMEN SINK 4 JAP SHIPS

Tiny Philippine Air Force Stages Daring Attack on Subic Bay Boats.

'A COMPLETE SURPRISE'

Many Small Craft Damaged By Gallant Fliers, Docks and Stores Fired.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — General Douglas MacArthur's tiny air force, following up his surprise assault last week that smashed enemy advance positions on the Batan battlefront, has sunk at least four Japanese ships in Subic bay in a daring attack, the war department announced today

With only a handful of P-40 fighter planes to challenge Japan's bombers, dive-bombers and fighters, MacArthur's dauntless airmen caught the Japanese by complete surprise and caused havoc in Subic bay, Japan's chief means of supply for the Batan front 15 to 20 miles south.

They destroyed one 10,000-ton ship, one 8,000-tonner, and two 100-ton motor launches

The feat of MacArthur's planes provided the second evidence in 24 hours to support what military experts have been claiming for weeks—that American fliers are superior to the Japanese.

Almost complete annihilation of a Japanese attacking force of 18 heavy bombers by a unit of the American fleet and accompanying fighter planes, revealed in a navy communique last night, was said by the experts to be solid proof of the American's superiority in the air.

The war department said that "in a sudden surprise attack" MacArthur's little air force "swept over Subic bay destroying several Japanese vessels."

In addition to the four ships listed as destroyed "many small craft were damaged," it was stated.

"Large fires were started on the docks of Olongapo and Grand island. These were followed by many heavy explosions among enemy stores."

Olongapo is the chief port of Subic bay at the top of Batan peninsula and was the western anchor of the line of MacArthur's Batan outposts until Jan. 9 when the America-Filipino troops fell back southward

Grand island lies in the entrance to Subic bay occupying much the same strategic importance as Cor-

Honolulu police said a number of windows were broken by the concussions.

BULLETIN

VICHY—(INS)—Paris had a new air raid alarm between noon and 1 p. m. today, some hours after a blistering Royal Air Force attack had killed 600 persons and injured 1,000. There were no immediate details beyond the fact that no bombs were dropped.

(By United Press)

VICHY, France—Bombs dropped from British planes on the Paris area during the night killed at least 650 persons and injured 1,500 others, early official estimates said today.

The two-hour raid, which centered on the industrial area of southwestern Paris, was described as "the heaviest of the war."

The worst damage was reported in three Paris suburbs, Boulogne-Sur-Seine, Billancourt and Neuilly. Two hundred homes were said to have been destroyed at Boulogne and Billancourt, and their occupants were reported "buried."

One of the principal targets was the Renault tank and automobile factory at Billancourt Several airplane factories also were reported in the bombed area

Latest reports from Paris said France's Hollywood Joinville was bombed A hospital at Neuilly was said to have been hit, but the reports did not indicate whether it was the American hospital whose inmates include 50 British soldiers.

Among the reported targets also was a gasworks at Vesinet.

(A German news agency dispatch from Paris said the raid caused more than 600 casualties. A famous French porcelain works was "completely destroyed," it said)

(A British spokesman said results of the raid were "good" and that perfect weather enabled RAF

Navy Fighters Blast 16 of 18 Japs Planes Out of Sky

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—A task force of the United States Pacific fleet, driving deep into the hornet's nest of Japanese mandate islands, blasted 16 heavy enemy bombers out of the skies in a running fight that backed up today the navy's promise of aggressive action.

The engagement, for all its spectacular success, was hardly major in character, but it had a double significance that impressed the capital.

First: Prohibitive losses had been inflicted on the enemy—only two of 18 attacking planes escaped—a fact which spoke volumes for the effectiveness of the fleet's anti-aircraft gunnery and its carrier-borne fighting planes. The bombers failed to score a hit and only two American planes were lost.

Second Fleet task forces were ranging farther westward, evidently close to the well-fortified Japanese Caroline islands, where lie such important enemy bases

NEW TEACHING PROBLEM LOOMS

Miller Says Shortage May Result In Revision of Married Teacher Ban.

Declaring a new shortage of teachers is likely to confront Mansfield schools next fall, Superintendent W. L. Miller said today that he may be compelled to recommend to the board of education that it revive its regulations respecting the hiring of married women teachers.

Under the present system women becoming married during the year are allowed to finish the term without being discharged. An earlier ruling had banned married teachers from the Mansfield schools entirely.

If the shortage becomes acute, however, Miller said that the board may be compelled to continue the contracts of those teachers who are married during the period they are in teaching service.

"I don't want to raise any false hopes in the minds of married teachers and I want to make it

ENEMY GAINS FULL CONTROL IN AIR, WATER

United Nations Defenders Put 'Scorcred Earth' Policy Into Full Effect.

CLOSE ON NAVAL BASE

N. E. I. Chiefs Reveal Their Land Forces Are Smaller Than Those of Invader.

(By Associated Press)

Japan's invasion hordes scored new gains against outnumbered American, British and Dutch troops in the critical four-day-old battle of Java today, and the danger was now so acute that N. E I. headquarters announced the major part of a scorched earth defense policy had already been carried out.

A Tokyo radio broadcast said Japanese mechanized units this morning reached a point west of the big Dutch naval base at Soerabaja, in eastern Java, and there clashed with "Allied forces trying desperately to halt the Japanese onslaught."

Other enemy columns were striking toward the capital city of Batavia, in western Java, where demolition squads already had begun to blast the picturesque 320-year-old town and toward the Allied headquarters city of Bandoeng.

Once again, a tragic story of Allied numerical inferiority—in planes, ships and men—emerged from the struggle for this last United Nations stronghold in the Indies.

Dutch quarters in London said that only about 50,000 Allied troops, among them "a few thousand American and British," were fighting at least 85,000 Japanese and that the United Nations naval force had suffered "a crippling blow" in attempting to halt the Japanese invasion fleet

Previous reports said the Dutch had an army of 100,000 to 200 000 troops, reinforced by "many thousands" of American, British and Australian soldiers, to combat the enemy's sea-borne attack.

A bulletin from N. E. I. headquarters conceded that the invaders "succeeded in making some headway at some points" as a result of numerical superiority "especially in the air."

The extent of the Japanese gains was not specified.

While there still appeared to be no radical change in the situation, the signs were ominous.

"The principal (scorched earth)

Roosevelt Starts Tenth Year, Still Stands Strain Well

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt began his tenth year in the White House today, little changed by the burden of events that might have broken the health of many men

The president's physician, Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, says his ability to remain calm in the face of great trials is the main reason for his good health today.

Admiral McIntire says nine years in the White House have left little mark on the chief executive. The war, however, has cut down on those frequent rest trips away from the capital, and continuous war problems have interrupted his warm-water swims in the White House pool.

Here's What Hypho Editors Think of Newspaper Work

By WILLIAM SWEET

A newspaper editorial office isn't as bad as a hospital for the insane.

Believe me! I found out yesterday.

The school books remained in the lockers yesterday while the Hyphonerian staff, of which I am a member, invaded the editorial and business rooms of The News-Journal.

Movies and radio serials play up the editorial room as a place comparing only to an asylum, but I think that is a slight exaggeration. From the desk of Managing Editor R. D. Lindsay, I saw the paper running smoothly on schedule as the reporters coupled with the three teletype news services brought news into the office.

The highlight of the morning came when bells on the teletype machines heralded important news. It

Being city editor for a day is great. It's swell But for a guy who is used to working on a bi-weekly paper, a daily is—well, it's lots more work and it moves lots, lots faster!

The city editor is the fellow who has nothing to do except give the reporters assignments, and assist in making up the paper, write headlines for all stories of news happenings in Mansfield, and edit local copy. That's all. Yet it's amazing how busy things like these keep him.

In the morning (and I mean the early, dark morning, brother, the city editor glances over the day's calendar and checks the stories that he wants covered during the day. Then, when the reporters sneak guiltily in, a little late, he assigns these stories to them.

When the bells ring, you jump! That means news, and hot news. And during the day I spent as telegraph editor of The News-Journal, they rang.

When you're helping to edit a high school paper, which comes out every two weeks, you have a lot of time—at times But on a daily paper, with deadlines to meet, you never have any time.

Especially when the bells ring!

It is an experience I shall never forget. Helping Ken Woodman as telegraph editor of the paper has changed a lot of the ideas I have had, not only about The News-Journal, but also about newspapers in general destruction in Java has now been carried out," the Dutch command said.

Highly reliable Dutch sources in London reported simultaneously that Vice-Admiral C. E. L. Helfrich had resigned as commander in chief of Allied naval forces in the Indies.

These sources declared Japanese submarine victories had reduced Dutch naval strength to such an extent that the Allies no longer were able to undertake a counter-offensive in the far Pacific battle theater.

Dutch headquarters gave this terse summary of the land fighting:

"It can only be reported today that our troops fight with stubborn resistance and in offensive spirit.

"In all places where the enemy attempts to advance he is strongly engaged by our troops, who try prevent his advance."

By contrast, British dispatches late yesterday said Allied troops had launched a counter-offensive, and the Japanese were reported thrown back seven miles in one sector.

Against the somber background of the Java conflict, reports from the Burma front declared that sharp Allied aerial attacks had slowed the Japanese drive toward Rangoon and that the enemy was being held virtually at a standstill.

A German broadcast recorded by Exchange telegraph, British news agency, declared one Japanese spearhead had advanced to within about 20 miles of Batavia and that the fight for the capital of the Netherlands East Indies was in full swing.

Such a thrust must have been made from beachheads either in the Bantam district of westernmost Java or the Indramajoe bay front. The German broadcast, however, did not identify its source and there was no immediate confirmation of the claim.

An Allied counter-attack was reported late yesterday to have driven the Japanese back seven miles in one important sector. This may have been in the Blora area, on the coastal railroad about 85 miles west of Soerabaja, the major Dutch naval base.

Darwin, a naval and air base on the north coast of Australia, was raided again by the Japanese, Prime Minister John Curtin announced.

A makeshift use of Japanese fighter planes in such cross-sea assaults as the raids yesterday upon Broome, Australia, 700 miles southwest of Darwin, and Wyndham was disclosed by an RAAF communique.

"The enemy used fighter aircraft fitted with long-range detachable petrol tanks," the communique said.

Helfrich Given 'Special Mission'

LONDON —(AP)— Vice-Admiral C. E. Helfrich, commander of the United Nations naval forces in the southwest Pacific, has resigned that post and been entrusted with a "special mission," it was announced today

Lieut. Gen Hein Ter Poorten, commander of the Dutch East Indies army, has been made acting commander of the naval units in coastal waters, the announcement said

The Netherlands government information bureau said the government had instructed the governor-general in the Indies, A. W. L. Tjarda Van Starkenrogh Stachouwer, to transfer the command of the fighting forces to Gen. Ter Poorten following upon the departure of Gen Archibald P. Wavell, former Allied generalissimo in the southwest Pacific

Reliable Dutch sources refused to speculate on whether the 55-year-old admiral had stepped out because of the loss of two Dutch cruisers in a night battle with a Japanese invasion armada last week.

Navy Crippled, Dutch Admit

LONDON —(INS)— Japan has crippled the United Nations naval forces protecting Java and now has complete control of the sea area of the Dutch East Indies an authoritative Dutch source in London said today in sounding a grim warning of the desperate situation in the southwest Pacific.

The announced loss of two Netherlands cruisers and other United Nations naval craft was a "crippling blow," the spokesman said, as most of the airdromes surrounding Java are already in Japanese hands and the possibility of reinforcing the island is now "well-nigh impossible."

(Editor's Note: The Dutch navy was able to salvage five cruisers after the fall of Holland. It was not known whether all of these were assigned to the Dutch East Indies or whether the two torpedoed over the week-end were th only heavy units defending Java. The five still in action after Holland fell were the Jacob Van Heemskerk, Java, De Ruyter, Sumatra and Tromp.)

Reds Continue To Encircle Germans

MOSCOW—(INS)—Beating back repeated and every-strong Nazi counter-attacks, Red army forces have encircled and wiped out several additional enemy strongholds, the high command announced today.

Meanwhile, the Russian offensive still thundered forward despite all German efforts to stall it.

The high command said that 3,400 Nazis had been killed in two days of fighting on two sectors of the front alone.

"On March 3," said the midnight communique, "our troops fought tenaciously, encircling and annihilating nests of resistance, and continued to advance in several sectors.

"On March 2, the Germans lost 60 planes and the Soviets lost 11.

"Two thousand Germans have been killed in the last two days on the Leningrad front, and 1,400 have been killed on the Kalinin front."

A supplementary communique said that on the battle sector northwest of Moscow Red army forces liberated two more villages and captured or destroyed four tanks, 18 cannon, two mine-throwers, 10 machine guns and 72 trucks.

Japs In Burma Wait On Reinforcements

MANDALAY — (INS) — Temporarily stalled by stubborn British land resistance and hammering air attacks, Japanese forces driving into Burma today were reported to be awaiting the arrival of reinforcements from the rear.

The British imperial defenders of Burma and Rangoon had dug in along the Sittang river defense shield during the comparative lull in fighting, according to reports reaching Manadalay, and were awaiting the Japanese assault.

Informed quarters asserted it will probably be at least a week before the Japanese, crippled by recent heavy losses, can renew their attack.

Meanwhile, British reinforcements of men and materials were said to be on the way, and a natural aid to the defenders' cause, the season of Monsoons or heavy rains, was said to be approaching.

One-Time Morrow Farm Boy In Line For High Navy Post

Promotion of a former Morrow county farm boy to the rank of lieutenant commander in the United States Navy has been recommended by a navy board, it was revealed today in dispatches from Washington.

He is Fleet Wood Corwin, a former Mansfield resident. He lived here following his retirement eight years ago until the time he was called back to active duty with the Navy last May. He now is stationed in Washington, in the Navy department's bureau of ships.

Now 54, Corwin traveled to most every part of the world during his 30 years of active service with the Navy. It was during this time that he rose from an enlisted man to the rank of lieutenant. He was born on a farm near Mt. Gilead.

While a young man, he was a boxer and won the welterweight championship of the Navy. At one time, too, he was named 13th best marksman in the Navy.

During his time in Mansfield, he was active in the Mansfield Rifle club league. He gave numerous talks before the civic clubs and other organizations on various phases of Navy life.

He is a cousin of Mrs. Frank Maul, 205 Gerke avenue, and while in Mansfield he resided with Mr. and Mrs. Maul.

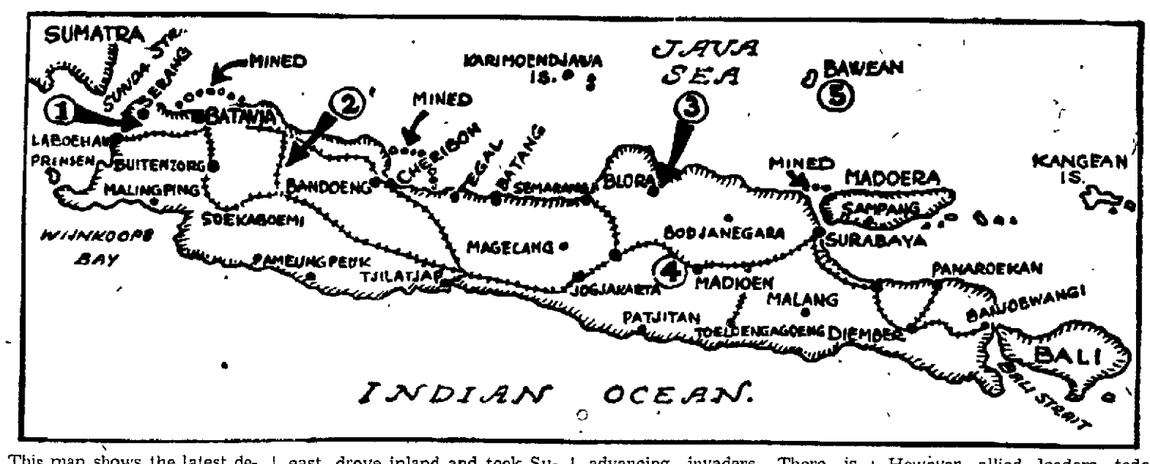
Latest Battlefields as War Moves Into Dutch Indies



This map shows the latest developments of the Jap drive on Java. Jap forces crossing Sunda Strait land at north west end of Java, forming one arm of pincer drive on N. E. L. capital (1). Forces landed farther east, drove inland and took Subang (2.) Another detachment, landed near Rembang, and led by cyclists, drove on to Blora (3). Embattled Javanese, carrying out scorched earth policy, smashed oil plants in path of advancing invaders. There is fierce resistance by defending forces (4). Sea battle north of Java (5) that started when Japs launched invasion, cost Japs nine warships sunk or damaged and between 32 and 37 of their transports and supply ships. However, allied leaders today admitted that the United Nations fleet had been crippled badly in fighting off the Jap invasion armada and that the enemy now had control of both the sea and air over Java.

Vichy Vice-Premier Admiral Jean Darlan was said to have directed personally the hospitalization of wounded civilians.

Say Buildings Fell Like 'Packs of Cards'

LONDON —(AP)— British bombers, attacking French industries producing war materials for Germany, flattened buildings "like packs of cards" in a two-hour raid on industrial targets in the Paris suburbs during the night, an official spokesman disclosed today.

(Vichy reported 650 persons killed and 1,500 wounded in the raid.)

Describing the operations as "highly successful," he said Royal Air Force pilots reports that several heavy bombs blew buildings hundreds of feet into the air.

"Our casualties were light," he said. "In all our operations last night, we lost only two aircraft."

While one British force raided the Paris area, other RAF planes resumed attacks on Germany.

The principal French target was the big Renault motor and tank works at Billancourt, southwest of Paris. Bombs also were dropped on the industrial districts of Boulogne-Sur-Seine and Neuilly in suburban Paris.

Authoritative sources said no bombs fell on Paris proper

The RAF's sudden shift from traditional targets in Germany to the Renault tank and motor factory may inaugurate a heavy, new campaign against "captive" arms industries throughout Europe which the Nazis have seized for their own purposes.

London observers pointed out that the captive plants in most cases were more accessible to British bombers than the German plants, many of which have been moved eastward beyond easy range

A diplomatic commentator said last night's raid was staged partly as a result of appeals from French evacuees who have escaped to Britain. He said these evacuees had told British authorities the French population was "surprised" that factories such as the Renault plant had not been attacked before.

He denied the Paris raid represented a new British policy toward France

Tidwell said he had gone to the ship's galley to get sugar for coffee before the attack.

"I had just turned around to leave when a terrific explosion shook the ship," he said. "Pots and pans flew all over the room.

"About 15 seconds later there was another explosion

"When the pots and pans stopped raining down, I ran on deck to see what I could do."

Reaching deck, Tidwell said, he saw the dark shadow of the U-boat lying about 150-yards off the destroyer's port side. It lay there surveying the damage it had wrought and waited for the Jacob Jones to sink.

In the hour the destroyer still floated, Dors left a life raft and returned to her decks to loose more rafts for his comrades and seek out mates who might be saved.

"I tried to make a raft out of two gasoline drums but the ship started to settle in the water before I could get finished," he said. "I jumped over the side and swam around until I found another raft. Just as I grabbed hold, a terrific explosion went off in the ship. I was blown clear of the water. I finally got back on the raft with three other fellows."

as Ponape, Truk, Yap and Pelew.

The navy communique did not indicate how deeply this area was penetrated. It said merely that the action had taken place west of the Gilbert islands—the Japanese mandates which a fleet task force raided with destructive results on Jan. 31. The Carolines are west and slightly north of the Gilberts.

It was apparent, however, that the task force had come within striking distance of a Japanese base, for the heavy bombers that attacked were land-based aircraft that can not operate from carriers.

The navy was silent on the subject, but the task force evidently was carrying out a reconnaissance in some force with orders to inflict the maximum punishment on any enemy forces encountered

The matter-of-fact language of the navy's communique gave a stirring picture of the pulse-quickening drama and danger that goes with this initial strategy.

"In the course of recent naval operations west of the Gilbert islands," said the report, "a task force of the Pacific fleet consisting of an aircraft carrier, cruisers and destroyers, was attacked by 18 heavy bombers of the enemy operating in two groups of nine each.

"These attacks occurred in the late afternoon and were timed one-half hour apart.

"The Japanese formations were closely and vigorously engaged by our carrier fighter planes and by anti-aircraft fire from the ships of our task force.

"Only three enemy planes of the first formation reached their bomb release point over the aircraft carrier which avoided all bomb hits by split-second maneuvering.

"The leading bomber of this group attempted a crash landing on the carrier and was shot down by heavy close-range anti-aircraft fire when barely 100 yards from its objective.

"In the second attack only five bombers of the enemy formation reached the release point. In this instance the salvo of enemy bombs was closer to the carrier than on the first attack but again no hits were obtained.

"Sixteen of the 18 attacking enemy bombers were shot down in this action. There was no damage to our surface forces. Lieutenant (J. G.) Edward H. O'Hare, U. S. navy fighter pilot, personally accounted for six bombers of the enemy.

"In the two attacks only two of our fighter planes were lost. The pilot of one was recovered."

Mrs. O'Hare Has a Right To Be Proud

ST. LOUIS — (INS) — "The proudest mother in all the world" today, by her own description, was Mrs. Selma O'Hare, whose son, Lieut. Edward H. O'Hare, was credited by the navy with shooting down six Japanese bombers in naval action west of the Gilbert Islands.

Free transportation on public transit systems for service men in uniform is in effect in Detroit and is being considered in several other cities.

Then Tugend took it away from him, he related.

Morgan said "the fireworks began when Tugend opened the door on my side of the cab and told us to get out." Roberts was in the driver's seat and Morgan was sitting beside him.

Morgan testified that Roberts started the truck motor and was ready to drive away from the scene of the strike when the trio hurried up to the truck and one of them turned off the switch and took the key.

Roberts backed Morgan in his testimony, but he was on the stand for considerable less time. Neither of the board members was seriously injured in the fray.

Attorney George Blecker is representing the defendants, while the law firm of Beam and Beam is counsel for Morgan and Roberts.

A total of 21 witnesses, most of them prominent in the Butler community, were called by the prosecution and defense. Ten were subpoenaed for the plaintiffs and 11 for the defendants.

The courtroom benches were filled fully a half hour before the hearing began at 9:45 a. m., and other residents of the village continued to file into the courtroom. There was no confusion and Judge Kalbfleisch had no occasion to call for order. Nearly half of the audience was made up of women.

NEW TEACHING PROBLEM LOOMS

Miller Says Shortage May Result In Revision of Married Teacher Ban.

clear that so far I have not discussed the matter with the board, but there certainly is a theatened shortage of specialized teachers," he said.

Miller explained that the chief causes of the shortage are the selective service act and the war effort. These forces are taking men teachers from specialized fields such as physical education and sending them to train army selectees and are taking women from fields such as home economics and sending them to conduct kitchens in huge new defense centers.

Although demanding re-adjustments, the war situation is not causing any great pinch in obtaining regular teachers.

"What we find hard to get," Miller said, "are teachers with specialized techniques. Physical education teachers, home economics teachers, music teachers, and instructors in special phases of the study of mathematics, geography and languages are the ones that are scarce."

The threatened shortage of general teachers such as those in elementary schools has been met to a large degree by the state department of education in Columbus which has relaxed requirements leading to the granting of teaching certificates.

Previously it took many teachers four or more years to obtain sufficient training to be eligible, but now the work is being completed in two or three years making new teachers available more rapidly.

During the present year nine teachers have left their classrooms in Mansfield schools. Five of these were called to the army by selective service boards, two were granted leaves of absence to join the military services and two women left by their own decision to become married.

All of these have been replaced although when Charles Fall, former Johnny Appleseed junior high school coach, was drafted, Joseph Thoms, a mathematics teacher had to be used to fill the post.

There are a total of 206 teachers in the Mansfield system.

regidor at the entrance to Manila bay.

Military experts said that no air reinforcements appeared to have reached MacArthur and that he undoubtedly relied on his P-40 fighters to carry out the surprise attack.

Previous reports had told of MacArthur having only a "handful" of the P-40's left and indicated that he was using them carefully, largely for reconnaissance.

MacArthur probably realized that the Japanese are concentrating the bulk of their air power in the attacks on Java and Burma, shifting planes from the Philippines, and decided to strike by surprise.

It would be feasible for pursuit planes, which have a range of about 800 miles, to take aboard considerable amounts of bombs in place of gasoline for attacks at such short distance as Subic bay. MacArthur's airmen probably 200-pounders, as well as incendiary bombs in the attack.

The American airmen probably swooped low upon the Japanese ships riding at anchor in Subic bay, military experts said, and unleashed their cargoes upon the unsuspecting targets.

MacArthur did not identify the types of big ships destroyed but it was assumed that they were either supply ships or big transports, inasmuch as warships would have been easy to identify.

What do I do?

This is the greatest cure ever discovered for tire trouble

Three-fourths of all tire trouble is caused by under-inflation, experts say. And remember, your tires need not look soft to be dangerously under-inflated. Just 5 lbs. under-inflation means up to 3,500 miles wasted from the tire's maximum life! Soft tires not only wear faster—they bruise easier, puncture easier, break down faster. With weekly air pressure checks and careful driving today's tires can give you up to 50,000 miles of service. Others get it—why not you?

As Dental Exams Started at Schools

Scenes like this will be re-enacted in Mansfield and throughout Richland county every school day for the next six weeks as more than 5,000 pupils in the first four elementary grades and the senior year in high school present themselves for examination at the state dental mobile unit now paying its first visit to Richland county. And the best part about the whole thing, according to the pupils, is that "it doesn't hurt a bit." In the picture at the top, Miss Lucille Lindsey, city health nurse, registers six-year-old Peggy Snyder, 564 Springmill street, at the compact desk in the dental unit. Peggy is a pupil at Bowman school where the unit will be stationed through Thursday. Dr. I. E. Henry, examining dentist for the Ohio department of health, is shown in the center picture examining Billy Mosier, 634 Johns avenue, another Bowman pupil. A close-up of Billy is pictured below. The state dentists in charge of the unit confine their work to examinations leaving the remedial treatments to the family dentists.

CALENDAR OFF?

PITTSBURGH — (U.P.) — Dr. Jotham Johnson, classic instructor at the University of Pittsburgh, could put up a good argument that this year is actually 1960.

Evidence that the world might be behind the times is in the form of coins excavated in Persia by Dr. Johnson and Dr. Robert H. McDowell. The ancient coins, according to their discoverers, prove that the modern calendar, generally accepted to have begun with the birth of Christ, actually began 15 to 18 years later.

CHAPTER XVIII

Judith saw only the living-room, large and tastefully furnished. It was the sort of room she would have guessed that Fay Hathaway lived in, a gracious room for a gracious person.

When Fay brought the letters, she asked, "Won't you stay? It isn't late."

"Not tonight. You're sailing tomorrow."

"And you in two weeks. That's quite a coincidence, isn't it, our going to the same place?" She was smiling happily, her dark eyes admiring Judith when she said, "But suppose I play for you, just one thing. Do you like Gershwin?"

The piano was at the far end of the long room. As Judith went toward it, a studio photograph on the piano became more and more familiar. Suddenly it was as if something had exploded in her brain. It was a photograph of Max.

She looked at Fay sitting at the piano bringing forth the memorable music of the Rhapsody in Blue . . . Fay and the Rhapsody in Blue and that photograph of Max and she, Judith, all in this strange, subdued, attractive room . . . She stood very still. All the color that the cold air had whipped into her face left it. She felt queer, light-headed.

Fay Hathaway was the "friend" Max had seen off on the West Indies cruise . . . Fay . . . Fay and Max . . . And it was to Max that she was going. To Venezuela two weeks before she, Judith would go to him . . . Fay was in love with Max, too.

She was staring at that photograph of Max when Fay looked up. She frowned, then smiled a little as she said, "Usually people do notice him. He isn't the handsomest man I've ever seen, but he has a strong arresting face, a face exceedingly attractive to women. He's Max Worthington and I'm going to South America to see him."

Judith could not look at Fay. She glanced back at the photograph of Max when Fay's warm, throaty voice continued:

"I was thinking of him when I said that it was too late for me to expect people to do for me what they should have done years ago. I've been waiting ten years for Max to make up his mind to marry me. Ten years of seeing him in an odd assortment of places where his work has taken him and waiting here for him to come back. That's why I didn't go to California with my family because he always comes back, stays a few months and is gone again.

"I don't know why it goes on and on with us. I've tried to make an end to it several times, but he won't let me. I know that there have been girls between, nice girls and cheap girls, but Max said once that I was the senior partner in his heart . . . He's spoiled every other man for me. I suppose, in a way, he's spoiled my life. But it's too late for me to change that, too.

"I love him much too dearly and understand him, between the cheap girls that satisfy something in his nature I can't satisfy he always comes back . . . Perhaps when that something in his nature no longer has to be satisfied, he'll marry me. I've been hoping he'd marry me this time when I go."

She laughed softly: "I don't know why I'm explaining him to you. Possibly because he's foremost in my thoughts tonight. To the other women in his life—and I know there are other women—he's probably a strange man. But the strangeness about Max is, I believe, his spiritual fidelity to me. I am the only woman who has met his family with the exception of the girl to whom he was engaged when he was very young. She died. I met him shortly after that when I played at my first concert. It's been going on ever since.

"Truly, I've never felt any of the trite nonsense of 'walking the back streets of his life.' On the contrary, the other women do." After a brief silence she said, "I'm sure there was someone when he was here a few months ago. I always know. But whoever the girl is, she doesn't know how much time Max spent with me and that usually on Sunday afternoon, we had tea with his aunts and uncles. I stopped resenting those other girls years ago and now I'm sorry for them because I know the terrible hold he has over me. Because I love him, I can't blame them for loving him, too.

"But Max doesn't make any promises he can't live up to. That is his outlet. He told me that once. But for him I might have been a great pianist. But loving him is a full-time job. Now you know why I'm going to South America."

Judith felt rooted and suffocated. Each thought that wove Fay's story with her own was a sharp pain in her mind. She did not cry but she knew that her heart was crying.

Slowly, very slowly and with great effort she turned her head and looked at Fay with eyes that had the cold bright look of someone dead.

Fay said, "My dear, did I say something to upset you? I'm sorry. Stupid of me to talk so much."

Somewhere Judith found her voice. "No, it's nothing. Nothing. I must be going . . . I'll mail your letters . . . The music was lovely."

"Thank you. I want to see you again, Judith."

"Yes, we must. Of course . . . Good-bye."

"Good-bye, my dear."

The door was closed and Judith stood outside. She was cold and shaking now, shaking with a fury she had never known before and was not likely ever to know again. The cold fury drove her to the elevator and to the streets where she walked heedless of any destination, heedless of wind and traffic lights and people.

Max! She, Judith, had been either one of the "nice" girls or one of the cheap girls—it didn't matter—but one of the other women of whom Fay had spoken and of whom she was wisely aware! It was all so clear now—the times when he had said he couldn't see her . . . He had been with Fay then. Lies, all lies, the things he had said to her and which she had thought were meant for her alone!

How clever he had been; but not as clever as Fay. How blind and stupid she, Judith, had been! Max had never had the slightest intention of marrying her. She had been merely time spent romantically while he waited for orders to go away again. And he had asked her to come to him after Fay—after Fay! All the others came after Fay, Fay to whom Max had been spiritually faithful for ten years.

A sense of shame mixed with her fury, shame because Max had made her feel for the first time that she was a small cheap thing used and discarded. The only person in the world she had ever loved completely had done this to her. How could he? How could he? Because Max, sensitive, intelligent and worldly, had known that she had never loved anyone before with a love in which there was also worship.

Lies, all lies, so smoothly spoken, neither his mind nor his heart wholly hers, only his presence and that briefly. She wondered whether he had said to himself that day at the pier! There's a girl I'd like to know. We'll have a delightful romance, I'll promise nothing and it will be farewell without regret when the office sends me off again. Fay understands this side of me." As cold, as calculating as that, as if emotions were things you could put on and take off at will, leaving no hurts to heal.

A good sense of direction guided her home. It was worse there because of the blue ensemble she saw in the closet. How many wedding dresses had Fay bought in ten years?

Later, she wrote:

"Max:

"I am not coming two weeks from tomorrow. I will not travel so far to a man in whose heart I shall never be more than a junior partner. I met Fay Hathaway tonight. She does not know. Why should she ever know?

"This is good-bye, Max, as finally as it has ever been said.

"Judith."

She did not wait for the fury to abate. She put on her coat again, picked up Fay's letters (they were addressed to several people in California) and went out and dropped them into the nearest box. The wind, sweeping around the corner, tore at her hair. She stood there, a lone figure on the street, and looked at the box containing the letter which would forever sever all that might have been for Max and her, a letter which made the pretty new clothes unwearable, the ticket to Venezuela useless, the explanation to her family futile.

It was done. She could not get the letter back again. She could not take back that final good-bye. It was a good-bye as final as death.

Presently she started to cry and put her hands to her face. Because all at once the fury abated, leaving love for Max still real and vital. A hurt love, but love . . . still insatiable, still demanding . . . love surviving even this.

That love survived she could not understand during the days that followed, days lived somehow by habit. You live because you must and because you cannot die. Odd, that other people with whom she came in contact with did not see that you lived because you could not die. They failed to notice her preoccupation, her eyes staring lifelessly out the window, seeing nothing, and the lost, hurt, bewildered look that frequently came to them.

There was still another expression that came to them—one of expectancy. Max would write; he would explain . . . But what was there to explain that Fay had not explained so well? Nothing. Yet there must be . . . There must be. It could not be over. Hope takes so long a-dying. Better the fury than this hurt; this waiting for a letter that never came.

Max had accepted her good-bye. But at the end of the first week she would not believe it, and at the end of the second week she still would not believe it though she knew that Fay was in Venezuela now.

When Judith found herself with a three-week holiday, she was beginning to believe that he would never write again. Three weeks of vacation, she thought, leaving the store that Saturday night, and no place to go except home would be unbearable because the people there who knew her and loved her would see that she was not herself. She could not go home and the prospect of remaining in the apartment for three weeks haunted by Emily and Tim and Max was unbearable, too.

For her it was one of those fortunately rare times in life when you feel that every cord has been cut and that you are drifting like a runaway balloon. There is no solid earth beneath you anymore. You have lost your dream.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 4, 1942.

It is becoming increasingly difficult to take the optimistic attitude that "there is some good in everybody."

Things will start moving along faster when more people realize that this is a war instead of a "project."

It was Horace Greeley who said: "The darkest hour in any man's life is when he sits down to plan how to get money without earning it."

Donald Nelson's Call To Americans

DONALD NELSON, dynamic and plain-spoken chairman of the war production board, individualizes the responsibility of every American in connection with the national war effort when he asks the question:

"Are you doing today every single thing within your individual power to see that the planes, the tanks, the guns, the ships, the ammunition and equipment those boys need desperately is getting into their hands faster and in ever-increasing quantity?"

Unless the answer is a loud, positive "Yes," he says, we are, in reality, helping the Axis win this war.

Strong emphasis is placed by Mr. Nelson on the futility of attempting to shift responsibility by placing blame on others for slowness in producing war materials—from each of the complaining individuals or groups he asked only the initiative, energy and co-operation necessary to increase production at least 25 per cent on existing equipment, and the closest possible approach to the limit of 168 hours of work per machine per week.

"The war can be lost in Washington," says Mr. Nelson, "but it cannot be won here. That can be done only on the battle-lines that now extend around the world, and on the production lines that extend across this nation . . ."

Making reference to the attack on Pearl Harbor, submarine action near United States coasts, and the atrocities of Axis warfare, Mr. Nelson says:

"If these things have not brought you to your feet alert and mad, determined that they shall stop and that those who inflict this bloodshed upon us shall be destroyed, then you are not worthy to be called American!"

Any fair estimate of America's war strength must make deductions for persons engaged in subversive activities; those who are placing personal advantage above national interest; the criminals who weaken argument that self-government is practicable; the racketeers of various sorts, who, by officially sanctioned or condoned illegal operations are enriching themselves at the expense of gullible persons who would otherwise be able to aid the war effort by investing in defense stamps and bonds, and the "conscientious objectors" who claim immunity from participation in a war that is being fought in an effort to save them, and their fellow-Americans, from enslavement.

If, out of the 130,000,000 people in the United States, there are enough who are willing to fight and work and pay, the war can be won—but it is also important to keep in mind that it COULD be lost.

Rubber Shortage Is Real, Not Phony

POSSIBLY it is recollection of the phony gasoline shortage Secretary Ickes unloaded on the country last fall that has resulted in some motorists not taking the tire situation as seriously as they should—

Like the old school reader story of the boy who scared folks by calling, "The wolf! the wolf!", when there wasn't any wolf, and then suffering disaster because nobody believed him when the wolf actually invaded his flock of sheep.

Even now there is a welter of confusion as to how much synthetic rubber can be produced—if and when—and the possibilities of developing new sources of natural rubber in the United States and South America.

All suggestions to motorists not eligible for tire rationing—and there are only a few of these—are that present tires be conserved to the greatest possible extent, as it is unlikely that satisfactory replacements can be secured for several years—possibly longer.

It is well to keep in mind that, of the 500,000 to 600,000 tons of rubber customarily used in the United States each year, 97 per cent came from the Far East and that this supply has been cut off by the war.

Practically all of the estimated 600,000 tons on hand in this country will be reserved for military uses, and synthetic production plus imports from Brazil can be expected to do no more than supply actual military requirements through 1943.

Unless there is greater inclination toward tire conservation than has yet been evidenced, the dire prediction has been made that, before new tires are available to private users, a large percentage of the nation's 32,000,000 cars and trucks will be out of commission.

Each Has a Part To Play

SEVERAL Mansfield groups are having opportunity this week to hear programs given by the Senior high school orchestra.

In listening to selections given by members of this musical organization it is also interesting to observe the exactness with which each of the young people performs his or her particular part.

There is need for this, of course, in producing the harmony essential to pleasing rendition of an orchestra number—and the thought occurs, what would happen if each of the instrumentalists were left to decide on selection, timing, pitch, etc.?

Each member of an orchestra, or any other group in which unified effort is required, retains all individual rights and privileges that may be exercised at proper times—but, for the purposes of harmony, musical, industrial, civic or national—individualism must sometimes be submerged or the purposes of united activities will be defeated.

If young people in school orchestras, and in other school group activities, learn the important lesson of working together harmoniously, each doing his or her part to the extent of ability, they will have taken a long step toward readiness for future responsibilities of loyal American citizenship.

Italy gets back into the limelight by announcing discovery of a new comet—but the Nazis will probably claim it as their own.

Buttons are becoming so scarce that some folks are conserving by putting money into the church collection.

Realize Value of Strong Air Arm

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

FOR CERTAIN purposes, like the production of stuff to eat, for excavation in quest of the various metals required in the manufacture of airplanes, and as a source of supplies of gas that scoot the flyers through the air, the solid earth underneath us doubtless always will have some few utilities.

Otherwise, if aviation enthusiasts are right about it, indications are that terra firma's surrounding atmosphere presently will be the whole thing.

When our current war started surface fighters, on land and sea, agreed that planes were vitally important to armies and navies, but only as weapons for the groundlings, after all. Later, however, it began to be talked that the air force is in a class by itself, entitled to consideration as independently of mundane soldiers and sailors as these two surface groups are regarded independently of one another.

Now the chat's to the effect that the aviators not only are on a par with the earthlings, ashore and afloat, but are superior to 'em—that they're the birds who really win wars, with landsmen and seamen merely running errands for 'em, down here below.

Earthly professionals don't admit it yet, but the heavenly experts say positively that it's a fact, and they're beginning to convince numerous other folk that they don't exaggerate.

All Important.

Illustratively, introducing a $12,555,872,474 appropriation bill for aviation's benefit, in his congressional branch the other day, Chairman Clarence Cannon of the representatives' allowance granting committee remarked, "The whole issue of this conflict depends upon taking and holding control of the air in every theater of the war." He didn't even mention continents, islands, oceans and Mediterraneans as of any consequence; the heavens above 'em were all he took into account.

As for our air corps' proportion in our total wartime setup, Brigadier General Frank E. Lowe, army chief of staff assistant, puts the rating, to come, as our program develops, at "nearly one-fourth."

Well, considering that flyers naturally are very carefully picked and trained, 25 per cent of 'em are quite a chunk in contrast to the other 75 per cent, scattered about among other subdivisions—infantry, artillery, tanks, cavalry, engineers and assorted services.

And Afterward?

But what about post-war aviation?

Why, the plane, predicts Assistant Commerce Secretary Robert H. Hickley, will be what the auto was in the last dozen or 20 years. He doesn't forecast that aviation will totally supplant surface cars for heavy transportation on earth, but he does surmise that planes will practically eliminate flivvers for family use, that all first-class mail will be carried by 'em, not under air mail stamps, but just as a matter of course, and that passenger carriage will be second class, except aviatorially. He doesn't believe that plane crashes will be any worse than surface auto accidents, either—in fact, not so bad, for pedestrians.

"Indeed," he says, "I think that the air is our new industrial frontier."

He gives the war credit for opening it up. It's gratifying to have it given credit for anything.

Mayos Proved Value of Teamwork.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

AN HISTORICAL account of the famous founders of the world's greatest clinic, the Doctors Mayo, is a book that I enjoyed thoroughly because it brought back the memories of my youth. The first time I saw Dr. William Mayo was in 1907, during the recent millenium, when I was an interne in the surgical service of Dr. A. J. Ochsner at the Augustana hospital, Chicago.

Dr. Mayo looked like a good doctor and a great man. He was. His eyes were as blue and cool and impersonal as the waters of Lake Michigan seen from the window of the operating room. He stood watching Dr. Ochsner operate for two hours and only spoke once. That was when Dr. Ochsner referred to the low mortality one of their colleagues reported in a certain operation. Dr. Mayo said, "Yes, the way to improve operative statistics is just when a surgical patient is about to die, transfer him to the medical service."

At the Mayo Clinic.

Later I attended the clinic at Rochester, Minn., at the very height of the Mayo fame. Everyone used to express astonishment that the largest surgical clinic in the world could have been established in a little country town. But there was no reason for astonishment when you saw it. They deserved every bit of their success.

Loyalty compelled me to believe that neither Dr. William nor Dr. Charles Mayo was as good an operator as my chief, Dr. Ochsner, who was the most dextrous man I ever saw, but in organization they were tops. They were the first to show the value of teamwork between the diagnostician, the surgeon, the laboratory, th ex-ray department and the anesthetist.

New Method.

Their pathologist, Dr. Wilson, worked out the method of sectioning, staining and examining under the microscope fresh tissue while the patient was still on the operating table so it could be told whether it was malignant or not, a method now in use in all first-rate hospitals.

With all their success, they remained simple and level headed. They had the most distinguished surgeons in the world visit them and often the demands of hospitality must have been quite oppressive. Dr. Will Mayo told me once of two top-flight English surgeons who arrived unexpectedly at the clinic.

Mrs. Mayo had let the servants go, but Dr. Mayo felt he had to invite the British to dinner and to spend the night, so he talked his wife into it over the telephone. She prepared the dinner and after a long evening of talk, she and Dr. Mayo washed the dishes. Exhausted, they went upstairs and found the British colleagues had each left a pair of shoes sitting outside his door.

"What did you do?" I asked the great surgeon, who had ten operations scheduled for the next morning.

"What do you think we did? We took the two pair of shoes down in the cellar and polished them."

Timely Editorial

Defense To Offense.

The rising demand for offensive action by the united nations reflects a normal and wholesome attitude. Theoretically, the madder the civilian population gets, the harder it will work for victory.

It should be taken for granted, however, that the allied commanders are better judges of strategy than we at home can possibly be, and also that our forces will shift from defense to offense as soon as this is practical.

The Japanese, dropping bombs on Indian territory are far from home, but they have the advantage of intermediate bases which the allies lack, not only in the vicinity of India and Burma but through the southwestern Pacific. Bombing Tokyo is a comparatively easy assignment for an intrepid, easy chair pilot 10,000 miles from the war zone. To our army and navy fliers, unfortunately, it presents serious difficulties which cannot be overcome until the allies also have bases within a fighter plane's range of the enemy. — Akron Beacon-Journal.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Alcohol Shortage Reported Acute Charge Chief Retards Production

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Sears Roebuck officials telephoned the War Production Board last week to ask how serious the alcohol shortage was and whether it was O. K. for them to take 150,000 gallons previously ordered for anti-freeze.

"Since Donald Nelson was once with Sears Roebuck," they explained, "we have to lean over backwards about these things. And we don't want to take the alcohol if the shortage is acute."

War Production Board officials replied that the shortage was very serious.

A few hours later Senator Clyde Herring of Iowa phoned to Fraser M. Moffat, jr., chief of the alcohols unit of the War Production board, and asked him why, with an acute shortage of alcohol, he, Moffat, had vetoed a government loan to the Gulf Distilling company of New Orleans, which was ready to improve its plant and turn out 190 proof alcohol.

"We don't need the alcohol," was Moffat's amazing reply. "Furthermore, you wouldn't want us to use government funds to establish competitors for existing facilities?"

Corn Belt Echo.

AS A RESULT of this and several other similar conversations, midwest senators are now accusing Moffat of being more interested in "not establishing competitors for existing facilities" than he is in relieving the serious war shortage of alcohol.

Senators Herring and Gillette of Iowa and George Norris of Nebraska all are raging over this situation and Norris has written a vehement protest direct to Donald Nelson. Senator Norris pointed out that Moffat is vice-president of U. S. Industrial Alcohol, one of the bigget alcohol companies in the U. S. A. Therefore, Norris claims, Moffat has a "direct interset" in alcohol competition and "should not be allowed to pass on" the building up of wartime plants which would compete with U. S. Industrial Alcohol after the war.

The issue is one of the most important before the country, for two reasons:

1. One of the greatest factors in bogging down national defense has been the way big companies placed men inside the government to keep an eye on competition after the war. Some of these men have been so busy worrying about their business after the war that we are not winning the war.
2. The midwest, if it gets in on the production of alcohol now, may have a permanent solution to its surplus corn problem.

This latter possibility is why corn belt senators are especially interested. For years the big alcohol companies have imported molasses and cane sugar derivatives for their alcohol. Corn never has been able to get a permanent peacetime foothold.

Even today, with whisky distillers gradually becoming idle in the middle west, Moffat was very cold to the idea of using them to relieve the alcohol shortage.

The battle is still raging, with midwest senators getting madder every day.

Note: Reason why the entire nation is being rationed on sugar is partly because sugar cane must go for wartime alcohol instead of sugar.

LaGuardia-Lehman Feud.

HAROLD MOSKOVIT, hard-hitting head of the New York State Affiliated Young Democrats, went in to see Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia the other day and suggested that the mayor attend a cocktail party at which Governor Lehman also would be present.

"You don't have to put your arm around him," said Moskovit. "Just come to the party and go through the motions of patching up the old campaign wounds."

The mayor turned and looked out of the window. Moskovit, who had worked hard for LaGuardia's re-election, continued to plead for political peace between the two political leaders of New York who once had been such good friends.

"Harold," said the mayor finally, "haven't you enough troubles of your own?"

"I suppose so."

"Then why do you take on somebody else's?"

Note: With the present split between LaGuardia and Lehman, Tom Dewey seems certain of being the next governor of New York. Probable lieutenant-governor will be Rolland Marvin, ex-mayor of Syracuse.

Rumor-Mongers.

THE MORNING after his fireside chat, the president fired another shot at "rumor mongers" and "poison peddlers" that wasn't reported.

This time he had a listening audience of one, New Deal Senator James E. Murray of Montana, who called at the White House to discuss a proposed expansion of public power facilities and the establishment of aviation training schools in his state.

"What did you think of the broadcast, Jim?" the president asked.

"It was the most effective speech you have ever made, in my opinion," answered Murray. "What you said cleared up a lot of phony rumors."

"It's a serious problem," admitted the president. "We've got to nail every whisper that poisons or befuddles the public mind about the war—and nail it hard. But we can't lick this problem unless every man, woman and child in America does his part."

The president added that he was convinced that the general public was waking up to the dangers to morale and unity inherent in false rumors and defeatist whispers.

"Yes," said Senator Murray, "the people are going to begin turning on whisperers who are retarding the war effort and interfering with national unity. They are going to begin telling the rumor-mongers to co-operate with you, the commander-in-chief, or else keep their mouths shut."

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Among the long-standing mismanagements of national defense, place a double check besides housing for defense and war workers.

The other day, the president established the National Housing agency and the secret was out. Until then there had been 16 (sixteen) separate and unrelated agencies and bureaus of the government dealing with housing. Is it any wonder they spent most of their time stepping on each other's toes?

JOHN B. BLANDFORD, JR., who has had nothing to do with any of these agencies, but has been assistant director of the budget, is head of the new set-up. Charles F. Palmer, who has been coordinator of defense housing (but as such has had his hands tied with 16 knots and no cooperation from congress) is going to England to study war housing there.

What happens now remains to be seen, but behind all of this is an amazing muddle, especially as regards your national capital, where housing is one of the worst of all possible messes and is likely to get worse before it gets better, no matter how fast NHA acts.

For more than two years, Washington has been growing at a staggering rate. The tidal wave of new workers has reached the level of 200 a day and this doesn't account for relatives and families who accompany them, nor for the hordes of non-government business men, lobbyists and what-not who have been pouring in since the first defense bill was passed. Yet aside from what private construction firms, the peace time social housing programs and an appeal to patriotic house owners to rent rooms to defense workers, practically nothing has been done.

Not long ago, the house committee on public buildings and grounds had before it the Lanham bill to provide $50,000,000 for defense housing in the District of Columbia. Palmer, testifying before the committee, said: "I do not know of any words with which I can make more emphatic the gravity of the situation. If we are again delayed by controversies over details; indeed, if the bill that I have suggested does not make funds available within the next few weeks, I cannot accept responsibility for the disastrous conditions that face Washington and for the effect such conditions will have upon our war effort."

SO FAR as the "disastrous conditions" are concerned, makeshift housing (such as exists in nearby trailer towns) and emergency bunking (three and four persons living in one small room) have reached such a level that Washington is right at the point of spilling over into tents and park benches.

Similar conditions have been reported in many communities, but in a lot of them, the boom-town log jam is being cleared out. Doctors, government officials and police here are saying that if NHA doesn't act and fast, serious impairment of health and efficiency and the spread of crime in Washington will be a lot more serious to the prosecution of our war effort than enemy submarines popgunning at oil refineries along our coasts.

A Farmer's Diary

In the Sugar Grove

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE maple sap is running. North of here, west of the highway, stands a ten-acre grove of sugar trees. They are straight and tall and aged. Many have branches of dead wood at the top. Numerous stumps reveal that time has gleaned a harvest of half their number.

Each massive trunk, near the base, bears two and sometimes three tin pails, or perhaps three gallons. As I looked down along the sloping giants it appeared as if they grew some silvery fruit of great proportions.

The ground was frozen and frost was heavy on last year's leaves. Occasionally as I walked across long strips of snow, it rang out in crisp, frosty accents. Yet by ten the sap was dropping well into the pails. Near the center of the timber I stood still and listened to that rhythmic drip, drip, drip everywhere about me. More constant than machinery was the uninterrupted dropping of liquid upon liquid.

The immediate surroundings possessed a noble woodsy atmosphere, a faint fragrance of rich pungent mould, an impatient dash of early spring that could be delayed no longer.

Crows cawed loudly as they flew. The flicker made his deep undulating curves, and laughed jubilantly from his favorite snag. The redhead axed the dogwood so that the hollow sound reached far out over the countryside. Other wild folk were sound asleep within the sheltering trunks of the trees.

Presently the farmer with team, dray and three fifty-gallon barrels, made appearance. I waited and saw him steer his course close to where I stood. The old bay team had lived far beyond the average age of horses, yet they were frisky from the cold. White lines of rime enclosed the long hairs of their nostrils. The farmer wore blue denim with a red bandanna about his neck. He was a stocky man, beyond middle age. As he drove nearer, he stopped and greeted me. His broad mouth was wreathed in a smile of welcome. He made me happy.

"This is a fine morning for sugar water," I suggested.

"Darn if 'taint. I didn't think it would be running, being so cold, but each pail is more'n half full and they'll be runnin' over by the time I get 'em gathered."

"There'll be a big demand for maple syrup this year."

"Yes. I rented my neighbors grove, too. It hasn't been tapped for a number of years. While a man's about it he might as well work hard—it's the way to do your bit, right at home, I reckon."

HIT FIRE FORCE

Draft, Enlistments Cut Down Volunteers at Ashland.

ASHLAND — World war II has brought about a lack of night volunteer firemen at the Ashland fire department,a condition which Fire Chief Paul Soles says is serious and which may lead to an increase of fire insurance rates in the city.

Previously members of the volunteer fire department, some of them college students, have slept at the firemen's dormitory and were available for service at any hour of the night. These men are now in the army service and there are now only the two truck drivers at the station at night.

With the truck drivers working alone at a fire until the volunteer members can be called by telephone Fire Chief Soles points out that a fire can get beyond control. An underwriter's inspector here recently also commented to the fire chief on the lack of sleepers at the dormitory.

City council was informed of this condition at their regular meeting this week and the matter of more adequate night fire protection has been referred to the police, firemen and health committee.

GALION SCHOOL BOARD DECIDES TO SUBMIT LEVY

Voters To Ballot on Two and a Half Mill Proposal at August Primaries.

GALION — Consideration of many school problems, in addition to the approval of a 2½ mill levy to be presented at the August primaries, were major items of business given attention by the Galion board of education at its March meeting, Tuesday night at senior high school.

The levy will be recommended for a five-year period, and is a renewal of the present one.

Isabel Monroe, clerk of the board, reported a balance for the schools of $27,420 on March 1. Bills approved for payment for the month amounted to $1,267.37.

After a discussion of the course of study for the Junior and Senior high schools, the board approved the plan as presented by Supt. M. A. Povenmire. The major change in the program provides four years of mathematics instead of the three and one-half years formerly in effect. The vocational shop course will become more selective, basing entrance to this department on the student's mechanical ability and general school achievement. Elementary grade cards were also approved by the board.

A report was presented from E. L. Heusch, director of vocational education in the state who paid a recent visit to the local schools. He recommended employment of an instructor for the shop department for summer months and said that the state department would pay his salary, if a program is arranged to carry on this work in the schools. Changes of organization of the shop, installation of individual drives in the machine shop and reorganization of space in the shop, were other recommendations. Hearing the report, the board authorized Supt. Povenmire to investigate the matter of employing an instructor or instructors for the three summer months.

O. J. Dewalt was selected to take over supervision of the Heise park work for the summer, beginning the first of May, and following last year's plan.

The board approved the plan to finger-print the pupils in the Galion schools for civil identification purposes. This work will be done by Patrolman Merle Gow of the local police force. Prints will be sent to Washington.

Vandalism By Children Unpatriotic

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

The other day I passed by a group of 11 children from eight to twelve years of age playing in front of a large vacant house. I noted with much distress that some of these children were jumping on the beautiful hedge about the spacious lawn and bearing down on it until it reached the ground. When I returned half an hour later some of the same children were still destroying that hedge, leaving it a wreck. Not one child of the group at either time attempted to restrain the destroyers.

From Good Homes.

These were all well-dressed children and the homes for blocks around were fine residences near a large university. I concluded that these children came from good homes. Not an adult was in sight. No doubt the parents of these children did not know where they were.

One would like to believe that children from economically secure families would be among the best citizens of a city.

This destruction could not have happened had the parents made it a practice to know where their children were and if, moreover, the children had learned at home to have due regard for the possessions of other people.

Home Duties.

Maybe some of their mothers, with the finest motives, were out collecting dues for the Red Cross, selling Defense Bonds or meeting with some relief society.

How grossly absurd that these children should be destroying their neighbor's home. This is a problem of civilian defense that the average mother in America has not awakened to: cultivation of good citizenship in the tots and runabouts at home. Parents should train their children to create and not destroy. It's time that all parents with opportunities and education exercised basic patriotism in the proper training of their children, knowing always where these children are. With this restraint let there be more family affection and companionship.

Pensions for Pearl Harbor Widows?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Soldiers' Letters.

(Ed. Note—Beatrice Fairfax, in Washington for the duration, will be glad to answer questions submitted by soldiers, sailors and marines, through the liaison officers of these branches of the service.)

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

It seems to me that those widows who lost their husbands in the Pearl Harbor disaster should be taken care of, as well as their children, by the United States government. Certainly they are as worthy of pensions as the widows of men lost in the First World war.

A. SYMPATHIZER.

The question of pensioning these widows will undoubtedly be taken up by congress.

According to the latest accounts, sixty widows and a Gold Star Mother took aptitude tests for positions at Lockheed and Vega Aircraft corporations. Navy Chaplain J. E. Johnson said there are 160 Pearl Harbor widows here who are expected to apply for jobs.

Mrs. Fern Evans, whose husband, W. C. Evans, chemist's mate third class, was lost in action, said: "We feel that we should do all we can to carry on the work in the cause for which our husbands so nobly gave their lives at Pearl Harbor."

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My daughter is engaged to a young man and expected to marry him before he was inducted into the service. As his classification is 1-B, I'm afraid he is segregated as mentally or physically deficient. In this case I should certainly object to my daughter marrying him.

MRS. B.

Please don't worry, Mrs. B. According to selective service regulations, Class 1-B is composed of registrants who are deferred from military service because of slight physical deficiencies. This may mean no more than some trouble that can be rectified by a dentist or proper glasses.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A young man, connected with me by marriage, would like to have a job in the plant of which I am assistant manager. I understand he has been rejected by the Draft Board because of underweight and defective hearing. He would be able to fill a position I could give him, but before taking him on as an employe, I would like to get from the Social Security board any information they have concerning him.

W. J.

The information furnished to the Social Securit board by employes is absolutely confidential and is not divulged to employers.

Novel Program Given for Club By Ensembles

A very unusual program was enjoyed by members of the Mansfield Music Study club when they met at the Jones Piano House, with Mrs. John Jones as hostess, Monday evening. Piano and vocal ensembles were featured. Selections carried out a Cuban and Argentine theme.

"Siboney," by Lecuona, was played as a piano duet by Lester Young and George Tuttle. Seated at two pianos, Mrs. George W. Hall and Miss Thelma Reed entertained with their rendition of "Malaguena" and "Andalucia," also by Lecuona.

Four pianos were used in the presentation of Cervantes' "Cuban Dance." The musicians were Miss Hester Robinson, Miss Frances Brinkerhoff, Mrs. Mabel Clingan and Mrs. Minnie Marks Cahall. Another interesting and unusual number was that in which six pianos were featured. Composition was "El Choclo," an Argentine tango by Villoldo. Those who participated in this number were Mrs. Cahall, Mrs. Clingan, Miss Robinson, Miss Reed, Miss Brinkerhoff, and Mrs. George Gernhardt.

Mrs. Leola Rogers and Miss Frances Carter sang "There Is No One Like You," by Esperon. Vocal quartet which rendered "Riding on the Pampas" by Esperon, and "Indian Lullaby," by Marks, was comprised of Miss Geraldine Harley, Miss Carter, Mrs. Dorothy Tingley and Mrs. Martha Bergstrom.

Mrs. Gladys Lane arranged the novel program. A talk on purchase of defense bonds was given by Paul M. Eliot. Recordings of vocal solos by Miss Betty Austin also were enjoyed. Next meeting will be held March 16 at the home of Mrs. George Gernhardt, 575 Marion avenue. Subject for the program will be "Original Manuscripts."

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"CAN I FLAG the armored car?" my father repeated in a formidable tone. "May I ask why?"

"Because Stephen Redfield will be most apt to have me trailed on any motor journey I may take today," I said.

"Please explain," he said.

Then I spoke quickly, and with as much brevity as I could manage, for I knew he was in no mood for long-winded explanations.

"You remember that I told Stephen I might run up to the Bronx this afternoon to interview the purely mythical old man who, I had told him, was the only person who might possess any clue to Jack's present whereabouts."

"I remember," he said laconically.

"I may be mistaken," I went on, "but I thought I saw a gleam in his eye which indicated his determination to have me followed, in order to find out for himself, or his gang, the identity of that old man."

"You don't need to waste breath telling me anything more," my father said. Then he turned to the telephone and barked into it a crisp, decisive command.

"Get Watson on the phone, at once."

After a brief interval he spoke again.

"Watson? Listen carefully! You know that car I told you would be at the front door within ten minutes? Yes? Well, it must be flagged. Get enough men to cover all streets through which it might approach the hotel—I gave you the number and the description—and tell whoever gets it to go back to X.Y.Z.J.M. and wait there for me.

"The driver will know what that means. Now get busy as fast as you can. Goodbye!"

He hung up for a second, then took down the receiver again.

"Get the manager on the telephone immediately."

I guessed that Philip Veritzen himself had given orders that any command of my father was to be honored as if it were his own.

"Mr. Milner? This is Charles Spencer. Will you come up to the suite of my daughter, Mrs. Richard Graham, as soon as you possibly can? At once? Thank you. We shall be waiting for you."

He hung up the telephone, and sat down heavily in the nearest chair.

"Now, if this fellow Milner has any sense or initiative," he said, "we are all right."

I only nodded, and waited with him during the extremely short interval before Mr. Milner's discreet knock sounded upon the door.

My father opened it and the suave, punctilious personality of Mr. Milner seemed to have invaded the room. He bowed low to me with a formal, "Good-afternoon, Mrs. Graham," and held his hand out to my father with a solicitous "How can I serve you?"

"Sit down and I will tell you," my father said, and the manager seated himself, with just a hint that his dignity had been ruffled by my father's brusqueness.

"Is there any way of getting out of this hotel and coming out upon another street?" my father asked.

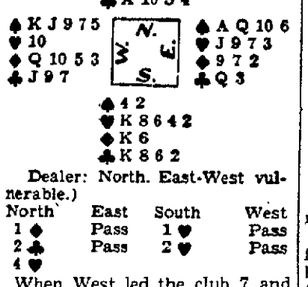
"The Authority on Authorities"

TOP SCORE VS. BOTTOM

When you seek to make a clear top score on a deal, better than anybody else in the duplicate is likely to obtain, with the kind of bid or play which almost surely will give you bottom score if it fails, you are usually going against the odds That is, most such efforts are in spots where the chances are your try will not work, as the odds are against it. Once in a while, however, you have what amounts to practically an exactly even chance. Then it will pay you sometimes to make the "shot"—which is really not a "shot" in the truest sense of the term, as the odds are not against you.

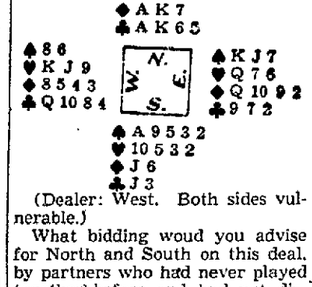


Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♦	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
4 ♥

When West led the club 7 and the Q came in, South saw he had received there a gift trick which others probably woud receive, too. That built him an almost surely marked finesse against the J and also indicated a probable tenace position in spades which not only prevented this West from leading the suit, but probably would impel the Wests of other tables to do likewise.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

What bidding woud you advise for North and South on this deal, by partners who had never played together before and had not discussed their conventions?

So South decided to try for an extra trick, on an even chance. He took the dummy's two heart honors, led to the diamond K and finessed the diamond J. When this worked, he used the diamond A for a discard of the spade 2 and led the heart 5 to the K. The club 10 was finessed and the A laid down. East ruffing with his heart J and cashing the spade A. The spade Q, however, was ruffed, and the last two tricks went to the heart 8 and club 8.

If the diamond J finesse had failed, East could immediately have taken the setting tricks with that one, plus the heart J and two spades. But South was out for top or bottom, on an even chance, and was smiled upon by fortune.

DUO-PIANO RECITAL GIVEN LAST EVENING

Mrs. George W. Hall and Mrs. Samuel D. Lockshin Presented By Temple Emanuel Sisterhood In Hotel Ballroom.

APPROXIMATELY 300 persons thrilled last evening to the presentation by Mrs. George W. Hall and Mrs. Samuel D. Lockshin of a duo-piano recital in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel. The concert was sponsored by Temple Emanuel Sisterhood.

Rapt attention was followed by enthusiastic applause at the conclusion of each selection. Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Lockshin presented a program which had great variety. Each composition was played with much feeling and so expertly that the two pianos sounded as one.

The artists, both of whom were well known, respectively, in musical circles in the East and in Ohio before coming to Mansfield a few years ago, opened their program with Bach's "Sarabande In A Minor," (arranged for two pianos by Cyril Scott). Their rendition of "Variations on a Theme by Haydn" by Brahms, proved very interesting.

In the second group were Chopin's "Etude In F Minor," Singing's "Variations for Two Pianos, Opus 2," and "Two Etudes In G Flat Major," by Chopin, arranged for two pianos by Guy Maier.

Following intermission, Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Lockshin again took their places at the piano to play their final group of very impressive numbers. These included "Minuet from l'Arlesienne Suite," by Bizet, "Fetes," by Debussy (arranged for two pianos by Maurice Ravel), "Frulingsstimmen," by by Johann Strauss, and Milhaud's "Scaramouche."

In response to much applause, indicative of the audience's sincere appreciation of the pianists' talents, Mrs. Lockshin and Mrs. Hall returned to play Moussorghsky's "Hopak" as an encore.

Arrangements for the recital were made by the ticket committee which was comprised of Mrs. Fenner Baker, chairman, Mrs. M. Marks, Mrs. L. Zeidman, Mrs. B. Brizman and Mrs. Walter Diamondstone; Mrs. M. Goodman, who was chairman for patrons and patronesses; and Mrs. Joseph Cohen who had charge of publicity.

INTERESTING PAPERS GIVEN ON PROGRAM

Mrs. Elmer Post Tells of "Poets of the Old South"; Mrs. Kochenderfer Discusses "Plastics" For Tourist Club.

MRS. O. L. SEYBOLD, 524 South Main street, entertained 17 members of the Tourist club at her home Tuesday afternoon. The kinds of defense bonds and the importance of purchasing as many as possible, was the subject of a talk by Mrs. J. L. Stevens.

Mrs. Elmer Post opened the program with a paper on "Poets of the Old South." She discussed the life and works of four major poets. Mrs. Post spoke of the unhappily varied career of Edgar Allan Poe as a magazine contributor and editor and of the master craftsmanship in his lyric poetry.

The second poet discussed was Sidney Lanier, who has the distinction of being the only one of the important American poets who also was a professional musician. This linking of the two talents is best exemplified, said Mrs. Post, in Lanier's "The Song of the Chattahoochee."

The "In Memoriam" volume of Henry Timrod, published six years after his death, show his versatility as a writer of nature poems, sonnets, war lyrics and poems of personal tribute, Mrs. Post stated.

Fourth writer whose works were described was Paul Hamilton Payne, poet laureate of the South. Mrs. Post told about his legends, lyrics, humorous poems and poems for children. She concluded by reading a favorite poem by each of the men she had discussed.

In an interesting manner, Mrs. G. J. Kochenderfer presented a paper on the present and future significance of the development and use of "Plastics." She explained the rapidly increasing scope of the plastics industry, described its raw materials and outlined its processes of manufacture.

Mrs. Kochenderfer pointed out that plastic materials in great variety are taking an important place in American industry and daily life, especially under the impetus of wartime metal shortage. She displayed several plastic articles.

Members of the club will meet on March 17 for a luncheon at the Women's club. Mrs. William Jesson and Mrs. S. D. Hoover will be hostesses.

Urges Immediate Repeal of New Auto Use Tax

PHILADELPHIA — (INS) — The Keystone Automobile club today urged that the new $5 automobile use tax be repealed immediately as a "throw-back to odious medieval forms of taxation such as window and chimney levies."

"This is precisely the kind of a tax which in the past has been carefully avoided in this country," declared the club, "for it not only is discriminatory and inherently wrong, but is, in addition, susceptible of the most gross perversion and abuse."

Asserting its objections are based on principle and precedent, Keystone asked: "Does the public believe that if this automotive use tax is accepted without protest, the present five dollar Federal levy will be the end of the matter?

"A continuing and ever greater need for revenues unquestionably will result in a demand for an increase in the Federal use tax," the club said. "Then states, counties and municipalities, charmed by the case of collection, will press for their own special automotive tax uses."

Pennsylvania Soon To Have Streamlined Parole System

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Pennsylvania today is preparing to inaugurate one of the most modern and streamlined systems of parole in the nation.

In an effort to reduce crime by providing for a more efficient plan of supervision over convicts freed from custody on good behavior, Gov. Arthur H. James will soon appoint a five-member board of parole whose duty it will be to place the plan in operation by June 1, 1942.

Establishment of the new system was approved by the General Assembly earlier this year and a $400,000 appropriation was voted to finance it during the present biennium. The five members of the new parole board will all receive $10,000 a year, with the exception of the chairman, who will receive $10,500. Board members will hold office for four years, except at the outset, when three members will be named by the governor for four years and the remainder for two years.

With the exception of the board members and secretary, the new parole system will be made up entirely of civil service personnel. Appointments will be subject to competitive examinations supervised by Pennsylvania's new Civil Service Commission.

The present State Board of Pardons, composed of the Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of Internal Affairs, Attorney General and Secretary of the Commonwealth, will continue to handle capital and life imprisonment cases and retain the authority to reduce by commutation, minimum sentences in other cases.

The new board is empowered to exercise its powers after the expiration of the minimum term of imprisonment fixed by the court or by the pardon board in a sentence which has been reduced by commutation.

However, it will also have the power to grant paroles on its own motion ("whenever in its judgment the interests of justice require it." In any case, its jurisdiction does not extend to persons sentenced for maximum terms of less than two years in prison.

The new parole system will be administered by a general Director of Parole appointed by the board at a salary of $7,500 a year. The state is to be divided for administrative purposes into not more than 10 districts, headed by district supervisors receiving $5,000 annual salaries.

A Hatch Law was written into the act setting up the system and under it employes are forbidden to participate actively in politics. A prohibition against extorting political contributions from employes was also made part of the new law.

Held Over.

Held over through Friday by popular demand, "Son of Fury," Tyrone Power's starring vehicle with Gene Tierney, Elsa Lanchester and Roddy McDowell is an adaptation from the novel "Benjamin Blake," by Edison Marshall. The author's own travels touched many ports described in the book and on the screen including old Bristol, shown as a bustling sea port, and the Tahitian isle where Power meets Gene Tierney in the picture. Power has the role of a swashbuckling lad of 1880 London who is forced to battle for his birthright wherever he goes. The picture is showing at the Ohio.

GEN. JOHNSON: Opens Way to War Jobs for Small Plants

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—I saw a piece by something of a Pollyanna "military expert" and obviously reflecting the views of some high ranking officers whom he had interviewed in a recent "swing 'round the circle" of training areas.

Gen. Johnson.

It left the impression of a pretty fully-equipped and trained army. But the point that caught my attention was its commendation of the assertion that even residents of the training areas are not aware of the thousands of soldiers so close at hand.

I don't question the accuracy of this except as to equipment and training, but when official assertions are so freely made that the people don't know there is a war going on, there is a good deal to question in its wisdom.

There is something to be said in its favor. Too many parades interfere with much-needed training. If you start turning the boys out for one community you are in dutch if you don't comply with every request Finally, these new long, motorized columns block traffic through towns and cities more than foot or horse troops.

But, on the other hand, there are few things more inspiring than regiments on the march with colors flying and bands playing. Almost from time immemorial it has been the best recruiting mechanism—the power and the majesty of the nation in an embodiment that can be seen and heard and not avoided.

Primitive ballyhoo? Yes, perhaps, but so is war primitive. So is enthusiasm. Parades have a distinct and valuable function in preparing the national mind for war.

Some with whom I have talked say that the businesslike, modern efficiency of the draft has taken away the need for any such thing. We did not find it so in 1918 when, for the first time, the draft was tried on a people at first skeptical or absolutely opposed to any such idea, and, in large part, opposed to the war itself.

We deliberately made a great and ceremonial occasion out of the departure of each draft contingent to camp—with bands, flowers, committees of honor and parades until at the last the volunteers departed unnoticed and the draft became a very popular institution.

Then we stopped volunteering altogether. It is absolutely inconsistent with every basic principle of the draft.

This time certain high officials, including the whole navy, do not see that. I understand that among these is the president's better half—our first lady.

I was told that she had heard somewhere that a man holding a third mate's certificate had been drafted and sent to the infantry which, she said, over the radio, did not make sense. She should check her information more carefully.

That man could have enlisted in merchant marine or the navy, had he so desired, up to the day of his induction. After that, he had to be sent to the army because the navy won't accept drafted men—which is, of itself, a serious lack of team play and indifference to a proper classification of manpower.

It is only one indication of a fine political fight which seems to be in course of preparation for General Hershey's department.

Up to recently he had done an almost perfect job. Now several departments of government want a finger in its pie. Movie and radio actors and officials, labor leaders, newspapermen and thousands in government clerical jobs can all be deferred as indispensible.

This was the work of pressure groups close in the White House confidence. With Mrs. Roosevelt to lead them, there is grave danger that they will take the ball clear away from General Hershey.

All these happenings are pretty much on the hush-hush side—like the display of troops. It makes one wonder in all these cases if there really is something to cover up.

PROMISES HUGE AIR ATTACKS ON GERMANY SOON

London Spokesman Says U. S. Dive Bombers Will Be Used In Offensive.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Plans for a gigantic air offensive against Nazi Germany with the aid of top-flight dive-bombers from the United States were announced in London today.

"The Americans are going to send us dive-bombers," a spokesman said.

"These aircraft, markedly superior to the German Junkers-87, will shortly be available.

"We intend to resume our bombing offensive against Germany on the largest possible scale at the earliest possible moment.

"In spite of exceptional inactivity due to the weather in the past two months, the Royal Air Force has dropped a 50 per cent greater tonnage on Germany than in January and February of 1941.

"Our air staff is convinced that a bomber offensive against Germany is one of the indispensable means of winning the war.

"Talk about the futility of bombings is dangerous. The RAF cannot guarantee immunity from bombings here day or night, but our night defenses far excel the Germans', and failing some far-reaching German development in bombing technique, we shall make it costlier for them in the future than before."

In offensive fighting during the past year, he said, Britain's air force destroyed 813 enemy fighters against a loss of 537 of their own planes.

"The armament of British fighter planes," he continued, "is very greatly superior to that of the best German fighters yet encountered. This year will see further improvement in Hurricanes and Spitfires. New types of revolutionary design are ripening."

The "best American fighters" are now in operation with the RAF, he continued.

"We have sent large numbers of aircraft to the Far East," he said. "We have lost some of them en route and many are in heavy fighting, but reinforcements continue to arrive."

The Richland county jail's first Indian prisoner in several years proved something of a puzzle to Deputy Sheriff G. C. Humphrey when he booked the prisoner in yesterday. Convinced by his appearance that the prisoner was a "foreigner" Humphrey asked him what country he was from. The prisoner immediately replied that he was a "real American" and he was born in New Mexico before it became a state. Humphrey had to agree that the prisoner, Columbus Kerschoga, 65, was right about being an American. Kerschoga is serving out a $5 fine and $8.55 costs imposed in municipal court for trespassing on Pennsylvania railroad property.

Mansfielders are becoming more conscious of metal than ever before. Everywhere they turn there's a box of some sort requesting donations of household scrap. In drug stores collections are being made of old shaving cream and tooth paste tubes, and the Richland County Auto club and gasoline filling stations are collecting old auto license plates.

Sheriff Frank E. Robinson was back on the job again today after a four-day wedding trip to Washington, D. C. The sheriff came home last night because he didn't want to be away from the office too long. NELSON PUTS END TO BIDS FOR CONTRACTS

WPB To Negotiate With Little Industries on Weapons They Can Produce.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Production Chief Donald M. Nelson ordered the Army and Navy today to bring thousands more of the nation's 200,000 factories into war production by suspending competitive bidding on arms contracts.

"Perfectly capable small firms" had been blocked from getting into war production, Nelson explained, because "under competitive bidding large concerns which already hold extensive war contracts are often able to underbid small manufacturers who are not doing any war work at all."

Nelson, in the directive he issued last night, said that henceforth simple, standardized articles must be ordered by the armed services and the maritime commission from smaller concerns, leaving the larger plants free to concentrate on accelerated production of such items as tanks, planes and big guns.

Under the original Army-Navy policy of dealing with larger firms, efforts to bring new plants into the picture had concentrated on encouraging contractors for the completed weapons to subcontract "bits and pieces" to smaller plants and factories.

The Nelson decree, instead, will let smaller plants contract for the weapons themselves, specifically the more easily handled items.

This would undoubtedly cost more, Nelson said. "More favorable prices are often obtained at a sacrifice of speed; by shifting the emphasis, quicker deliveries can be had at comparatively minor increase in cost."

The new order, "Directive No. 2" makes negotiated contracts mandatory unless the war production board gives specific permission for inviting bids.

It was understood the treasury procurement division immediately would get such permission, and perhaps some other agencies. Primarily it was said, the order was aimed at the purchasing policies of the army, navy and maritime commission.

At the prescribed "break" in the ballad, the customers clapped—clap, clap—just before the words "Deep In the Heart of Texas." Mr. Aherne took the applause as a compliment to Miss Rogers. "Is that song," he asked, "from Ginger's new picture?"

Bucyrus Police Chief Wants 2-Year License Requirement.

BUCYRUS—Amendment of the Bucyrus bicycle licensing ordinance so as to provide re-licensing every two years was proposed at the meeting of city council last night by Police Chief Arthur Stuckert.

The present ordinance, passed in 1939, provides that only one license need be obtained. Approximately 2,000 bicycle owners have obtained licenses and paid the fee of 25 cents.

Chief Stuckert's proposal was referred to committee.

Council passed a resolution authorizing all city department heads to grant leaves of absence to employes called to Army service, as well as to grant furloughs to those in civil service.

CONFESSES HE KILLED WOMAN

Akron Conductor Tells How He Beat Mother-in-Law To Death With Mallet.

(By International News Service)

AKRON — Detective Lieut. Robert Van Steenberg, today obtained a confession from Beauford Perkins, 39, that he beat his 68-year-old mother-in-law, Mrs. Ella Devoe, to death with a hard rubber mallet when she reproached him for excessive drinking.

Perkins, a conductor for the Pennsylvania railroad, slugged Mrs. Devoe many times on the head with the mallet, crushing her skull, Van Steenberg said, then dragged the body into the basement of their East Akron home and placed it in front of the furnace.

"Perkins admitted coming home with several drinks on him," Van Steenberg declared, "and Mrs. Devoe started berating him for drinking. He admitted seizing the mallet and attacking her and the two fought for nearly an hour."

Mrs. Devoe had lived with Perkins, his wife, Loretta, and their two sons for the past 22 years, Van Steenberg said he learned. The wife and a 19-year-old son were working yesterday when the attack occurred. Another son, 20, is in the navy.

After the attack, Perkins threw the mallet in the furnace. Van Steenberg said he did not believe Perkins tried to shove the victim's body into the furnace although one of the woman's arms was scorched from the heat of the furnace door.

Perkins will be charged with first-degree murder later today.

GIVE UP OHIO ARMY CAMP PLAN

War Officials Decide Not To Build at Chillicothe.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Plans for construction of an army camp at Chillicothe, O., have been cancelled, the war department announced today.

Two engineering firms of Toledo, O., will be paid for architect-engineer services they performed in advance planning for the camp, the department said. It had announced yesterday the award of a contract for such advance planning to the two firms, Mills, Rhones, Bellman and Nordhoff, Inc., and H. P. Jones and company.

There was no official explanation of abandonment of the Chillicothe site, but informed persons said excessive land costs were the principal reason.

URGES WAR SUPER-HIGHWAYS WITH ELECTRIC-EYE CONTROL

(By United Press)

MEMPHIS — A vast network of super-highways over which war materials and men may some day move rapidly, with accompanying landing strips and traffic controlled by photoelectric cells was proposed today by Rep. Jennings Randolph, D., W. Va.

"Our air force must be supplied with hundreds of supplemental landing strips, as well as hundreds of additional airports, Randolph told delegates at the 40th annual convention of the American Road Builders' association.

"Landing strips at intervals adjacent or parallel to our highways will come in the future. Congress appropriated money but far too little. Fifty million rather than the present five million should be available," Randolph said.

"We already have the electric eye controlling doors and many other labor saving devices. Why not an electric beam or pair of beams which when disrupted by a plane will break the circuit and control a traffic light for landings?"

Randolph, who introduced the first super-highway legislation in congress in 1934, said 23 planes had landed and taken off from the Pennsylvania turnpike, including a B-19 bomber.

A third branch of service, the supply force, also could use such highways to advantage, he pointed out. He said the navy already was using such a streamlined highway to advantage to rush supplies to tidewater.

Girl Leaps From Window, Seaman Follows; Both Live

NEW YORK —(INS)— An earsplitting shriek which brought pedestrians' head up with a jerk preceded the leap of a blond waitress out of a fourth floor window in a New York rooming house late yesterday.

A split second later, a man came flying out the same window.

Both landed on a third-floor setback a little more than 10 feet below, the girl suffering a possible spinal injury and the man, a wrenched ankle.

They identified themselves as Kay Harris, 23, formerly of Youngstown, O., and Richard, Narcarro, 27, a seaman, formerly of Dayton, O. They met as participants in a dance marathon in New York several years ago and Narcarro had several times proposed marriage.

Yesterday there was a quarrel which brought the rooming house superintendent with a demand that the girl move. Her reaction was the window leap with Narcarro after her.

And now for a peek at the mail in the time the clock on the wall will allow. Whup. Clock's stopped. Take your time, Bub, you ain't goin' nowhere. But fast!

Today the mail is all baseball, Mansfield baseball, so the mail tells a tragic tale, neighbor, a ter-ragic tale.

The first letter is addressed to me, but it appears to be an open epistle to all Mansfield baseball fans, and particularly to those sportsmen with money, if any.

Dear Rex—I noted with regret the article which stated that the Mansfield Braves are "almost out of the league." What's the matter? Haven't we got enough redblooded sports in this town to make it possible to retain the Mansfield Braves in the Ohio State league?

Surely if Marion or Sandusky can support a team, there is no reason why Mansfield can not, if it is placed on a sportsman basis. What do you say, old baseball fans, that we try to influence those who may be interested in retaining Mansfield's franchise in the league. Let's hear from you.

P. G. Renie

(Still a Braves Booster.)

Let's not mourn yet around the graves
Of those stout boys, the Mansfield Braves.

* * *

And here's a letter from a stout Mansfield Brave. You think he isn't? It's from wee Willie Reinka---wee but stout, and getting stouter.

Says Bill:

"I haven't heard anything from George Satterlee as yet on the baseball situation, although it's a little early in March.

"I've gained about ten pounds since September but most of it is hardened muscle from work. I haven't seen Kuzava in months, but I think his Flint contract was transferred to Charleston."

* * *

Reinka sends a clipping from his home town Wyandotte, Mich., paper listing a bucketball program for last night: Harlem Globe Trotters vs. New York Celtics; Detroit Eagles vs. Automobile club of Michigan; New York Renaissance vs. Toledo and Chuck Chuckovits.

And prices were: $2.20-$1.65-$1.10-75 cents, and general admission 55 cents. I don't think they could put that on here.

Here's a line, brother. Beat it out.
Wee Willie was chunky, now he's stout.

Basketball Favorites Take Tilts

Top Clubs Advance In High School Sectionals.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.)—Favorites advanced generally as expected in first round games last night at five Ohio scholastic basketball tournaments while a heavy snowfall in the northeastern section forced postponement of two games scheduled for a fifth tournament.

* * *

Columbus South, a seeded entry in the central district Class A playoffs, walloped Columbus Aquinas, 49 to 24, in South's initial test at Delaware while Wauseon thumped Paulding, 51 to 34, in the northwestern Class A meet at Defiance in the feature Class A tilts.

Two darkhorse teams registered mild surprises in the Class B ranks as Eaton nudged out Brecksville, 46 to 41, in the northeastern sectional at Lorain-Clearview and Frazeysburg nosed favored Cumberland, 45 to 44, in the eastern sectional at Zanesville.

Two opening round Class B clashes carded at McDonald in the northeastern district had to be delayed until tomorrow night because of the heavy snow which blanketed northeastern Ohio yesterday. Thursday had been an open date at the McDonald tourney so the postponement will do little damage to the schedule.

* * *

Vic Keller of Wauseon rang up the highest individual point total of the evening in Class A when he collected 22 against Paulding.

* * *

Eight more meets get under way tonight and 40 games in all are scheduled in 13 tourneys around the state. Starting tonight are Class A playoffs at Toronto, Kenton and Dayton and Class B at Tiltonsville, Kent, Ashland, Fremont and Celina.

Buckeyes Fail To Land Star

UP All-Big Ten Team Overlooks Ohio State.

CHICAGO — (U.P.)—Although Illinois led the Big Ten basketball race from flag-fall to finish, the new champions did not have a monopoly on individual talent in the league, the annual United Press all-conference team selected by a vote of the coaches disclosed today.

* * *

Topping the balloting, which placed representatives from five schools on the first team, was Andy Phillip, brilliant sophomore guard of the championship Illini combination.

Voted first string berths along with Phillip were John Kotz of Wisconsin and Forrest Sprowl of Purdue at the forwards; Milt Kuhl of Iowa at center and Andy Zimmer of Indiana at guard.

Size and scoring ability are the two outstanding features of this all-conference team. The five performers average six-foot-three inches and have scored an aggregate of 753 points in 14 games.

Chosen for the second team were Otto Graham of Northwestern and Ken Menke of Illinois at the forwards; Jim Mandler of Chicago at center, and Don Blanken of Purdue and Vic Siegal of Iowa at the guards.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(WW)—The promoting fraternity must take back seats for a few months while the American Bowling Congress is in action. . . . No other event can produce such astronomical figures, . . . Nearly $175,000 was laid on the line to get ready for the 72-day-and-night affair and the pins alone cost $98,000. . . . Van Meter (Ia.) high school (Bob Feller's alma mammy) with an enrollment of 96, has produced a girls' basketball team that has won 19 straight games. . . . The Giants really are giants this spring. Eleven men in the Miami camp weigh more than 190, and they go up as far as Johnny Mize's 230. . . . Stanley (coach) Woodward of the N. Y. Herald Tribune comes up with the idea that N. Y. U. should adopt the football Giants as their team and go back to the good old days when the Violets were represented by professionals.

RECORDS WRECKED.

Basketballers who kept setting new scoring records week after week in the Kent county (Canada) league at Blenheim, Ont., didn't know why they were so hot until Morrison rang up 102 points in a game his team won 131 to 51.... Someone finally thought of measuring the baskets and discovered that the hoops were 2½ inches wider than the regulation diameter.

Kotz Must Score 15 for New Mark

CHICAGO — (AP) — Although Johnny Kotz of Wisconsin has made a runaway of the Big Ten's individual basketball scoring race, he will need at least 15 points in his final game Saturday against Iowa to equal the season's average Jewell Young of Purdhe established in his record performance of 1938.

* * *

The Big Ten played only 12 conference games that year and Young bagged 184 points or a fraction over a 15-point-a-game average. Competing in a 15-game schedule, Kotz has tallied 213 points in 14 games for an almost even 15-point average.

* * *

Second to Kotz in the 1942 scoring race is Otto Graham of Northwestern, who has 180 points.

Shaking Knife at Someone In Iowa Pen Means Pass Turnips

(By International News Service)

FORT MADISON, Ia.—Shaking a knife at someone across the table is not considered impolite at the Iowa state penitentiary.

It merely means that the shakee wants the turnips.

Silence is enforced in the prison dining room and the men have worked up a complete set of signs and symbols to meet their needs.

Seated eight or nine at a long, narrow table, the men must pass their plates to the end, where waiters serve the food. The man seated on the end gets the plates filled and passes them back. He also signals the kind of food the waiters are bringing.

An upthrust thumb doesn't carry the usual cheering aspect the country has learned to expect from it. It means "I don't want any."

When the man at the end of the table sees that beans are on the way, he flips his thumb in a marble-shooting manner. The convict passes his plate. If he doesn't want a ladle full, he holds up his little finger for a half portion.

An upheld hand calls for more bread. An upraised fist is a request for more potatoes. Knife, fork and spoon held up together is an easily-understood signal for stew.

A washing motion with the hands means water. Thumb up and index finger straight out means coffee or tea. For milk, a convict opens and closes the hand as though milking.

Hand flat and passed back and forth across the plate tells the man at the end that gravy is wanted.

When the end man beats a tatoo on the table with his spoon, he is telling his comrades that fruit, or dessert of any kind, is on the way.

The fork is held up for meat. Fist balled up and thumb thrust through the fingers means vinegar. Two fingers thrust out—and salt and pepper are passed. A looping motion with the index finger gets the syrup pitcher.

The silence rule isn't strictly adhered to, however, and even the prison officials know it.

Convicts soon learn to speak without moving their slightly open lips, talking low and looking straight ahead. Add to this ability the multitude of other signs known only to the prisoners, and dinner isn't such a solemn occasion.

WHEN CHILDREN HAVE REPEATED COLDS

it is wise to start building their resistance by giving them Father John's Medicine if their repeated colds are due to lack of vitamin A. It is excellent for children, and is free from alcohol and all harmful drugs.

Father John's Medicine also gives prompt relief from coughs due to colds by soothing throat irritation. It is pure, wholesome, nutritive, and rich in vitamins A and D. Over 85 years in use.

Lists Rules To Maintain Civilian Wartime Morale

EVANSTON, Ill—(INS)—Here are seven rules for maintaining wartime civilian morale, given by Dr. Irving J. Lee of Northwestern university:

1. Center your attention on your task at hand and seek new ways of helping.

2. Don't feel that the whole burden rests on you. Just do something, however small, and the net result will be great.

3. Don't worry. Worrying about a situation dissipates your energy, leads to more worry, and saps your efficiency for necessary work.

4. Don't expect too much. Prepare for bad news. It isn't the pain, but the surprise coming of the pain that hurts.

5. Question all rumors. Don't let them affect you emotionally.

6. Trust those in authority. They are the only ones in a position to know the facts.

7. Don't worry near children. They are easily excitable and spread anxiety quickly.

LOW LIVING COSTS

COLUMBIA, Mo.—(U.P.)—A survey of 3,000 northwest Missouri farm families shows the average family of three persons spends $2.97 a week during the winter for food. This same average family owns 100 chickens, has two cows, kills two hogs and eats 41 of its own chickens a year.

GRETNA GREEN FOR MIDWEST STILL ON RISE

Missouri's 'Marriage Mill' Attracts Couples From Illinois, Iowa.

(By United Press)

KAHOKA, Mo. — Missouri's newest "marriage mill," already boasting more than a 300 per cent increase over last year's total of weddings, is running a 24-hour-a-day schedule for swains and their brides.

Kahoka began cashing in on marriage a trifle in 1937 when Illinois passed a law requiring a blood test for prospective newlyweds and a three-day waiting period between issuance of the license and performance of the ceremony. Then in 1939 business received another boost when Iowa passed a similar law.

Nestled in the northeastern corner of Missouri, just across the border from both states, Kahoka began to prosper. In 1939 there were 1,133 marriages while in 1940 there were 1,353. For the first 11 months of 1941 there were 4,641—and all in a town with a population of 1,781.

Gaining the most from the huge increase is Archie Starr, the circuit clerk in charge of issuing the licenses, and two justices of the peace, John A. Evans and George E. Moore. However, six ministers, the probate judge and the presiding judge of the county court also take in some fees for performing ceremonies.

Most of the night business goes to Moore and Evans—and, of course, Starr gets a commission on all licenses issued. At present Moore and Evans, to settle a dispute over income, are working on a split-the-fee basis. Each month they divide their fees.

The controversy arose when Moore apparently had an edge in the number of ceremonies. Four strangers appeared in town and Moore's business virtually ceased while Evans' boomed. The contract resulted, but Moore says he will not sign another agreement.

Moore and Evans both charge $2 for day services but they'll accept more and usually expect a premium price for ceremonies after dusk. Justice Moore has developed his marriage "parlor" into more than just a place for weddings. He buys wedding rings in broken lots and sizes and sells them to couples who appear without rings. Also he sells signs which read "Just Married—by G. E. Moore." He plans to install tourist cabins at the rear of his home as a further service for his customers.

The price of the license is set by state law at $1.50, but Starr increases that figure for night and Sunday jobs. He refuses to say what price he expects, but indicates he judges his fee by the apparent prosperity of the client. With his assistant, Oscar Watson, he maintains office hours all the time. Starr also provides fancy wedding certificates for those who prefer them. Of course they cost more, but Starr won't reveal how much. He buys them in lots of 500.

London Reports Acute Shortage of Cheap Tinware

LONDON —(INS) Shortage of cheap tinware and light metal and enamelled goods in shops here is daily getting more acute.

An executive official of one of the biggest chain stores in London has explained:

"The scarcity is not due so much to the lack of metal as difficulties of packing and transport.

"It was simple when a store could order a few cases at a time, but now there are practically no cases available. So a store has to order a whole box-car load—or nothing.

"It looks as if stores will soon be able to have only one big delivery a year. That consignment could be sold in a few weeks."

2—Card of Thanks

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes, but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A "Card of Thanks" can now be arranged by telephone: Dial 4251-6, ask for Miss Lane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need.

STOCK BIDDERS SHY AT LATEST WAR REVERSES

Few Industrials and Rails Advance Slightly But Trend's Indecisive.

By VICTOR EUBANK
(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Industrial specialties and a few rails "moved ahead a little today as other departments of the stock market churned indecisively.

Trying for improvement were U. S. Gypsum, Johns-Manville and Union Carbide. Santa Fe established a new high for the last year.

Although the market rested on an even keel there was little follow through on yesterday's buying. Adverse news from Java and fears of repercussions of British bombing of industrial areas near Paris put sharp restraints on potential bidders.

Holders of building equipment shares were heartened by a survey indicating demand for cement this year might exceed the peak of 175,840,000 barrels reached in 1928.

A big volume of construction for military purposes, authorities pointed out, would offset a general decline in residential and other civilian building activity. Latest defense appropriations of congress allocated around $5,500,000,000 for new construction.

TELL WILLARD MURDER STORY

Testify Woman Stabbed Her Husband Three Times In Abdomen.

NORWALK, O—(AP)—Mrs. Emma Jean Rothlisberger, 29, of Willard, knelt weeping over her husband, Louis, 56, last June, and said "Don't die and leave me" after stabbing him three times with a knife, Floyd Ballard, state witness said today in the first degree murder trial underway here.

Floyd Ballard, his brother, Walter, and Raymond Oakley, all witnesses for the state and roomers at the Rothlisberger home, gave similar accounts of the fatal stabbing on the stand Tuesday afternoon and today.

Floyd said that he saw Mrs. Rothlisberger drive the knife into her husband's abdomen "three times" and then slash Walter Ballard when he tried to stop her.

Floyd said that the quarrel between the couple started when they returned from a Willard beer parlor. He said that the couple "threw dishes at each other for 15 minutes when they first reached home."

The witness then said that he saw "Mrs. Rothlisberger go through the living room toward the stairs carrying a knife." He followed, he said, and watched the attack on Rothlisberger.

After the stabbing, Floyd said, Mrs. Rothlisberger made the statement "Don't die and leave me" while her husband tried to crawl upon the bed.

John Ballard, another brother, will testify for the state this afternoon.

It's 'Big News' When Bells Ring, Student Learns

all the news of world-wide importance, is an exciting one to say the least. Seeing news of world-shaking importance heralded by repeated ringing of bells (signaling a flash) appear before my eyes on leased wire teletype machines of the Associated Press, United Press and the International News Service, gave me a thrill that I won't soon forget.

Although there is always something doing at the telegraph desk from 8 in the morning until the final edition is on the press. There is none of the frantic rushing about and hair-pulling as shown in the movie versions of a newspaper office.

There is certainly plenty of activity, but everything runs smoothly, almost like clock-work. Every once in awhile, something whistles by your ear but its only a piece of paper upon which stories are written, tossed by some reporter from a nearby news desk into an editor's basket.

I think I'll explain those bells I mentioned before. They aren't anything like the bells which start a boxing match but they do bring about a somewhat similar effect. You see, whenever the bells ring it means" big news" is coming over one of the leased-wire teletypes. If the bells ring three or four times, it's a bulletin, five times means it's a flash, but if you hear the bells ring about 14 times and then repeat, your first act is to dive for the wire room with the greatest possible speed to see what's cookin.'

That's just what happened yesterday. At exactly 10:07 a. m., eastern war time, the bells began to ring and we all ran excitedly to the wire room. The teletypes were sending over the first flashes concerning the sinking of the U. S. destroyer Jacob Jones.

Thus I spent what might be termed a typical day at The News-Journal office as telegraph editor-for-day. There is, as I said, more work to it than putting out a high school paper but it is exciting and interesting work and I enjoyed every moment of it.

Finds Putting Out A Paper Requires Speed, Lots of It

city desk is comparatively quiet. Amid all this calm the city editor plans for the rush that is to come. Then from 10 to 10:30 the reporters come back from a morning of pavement pounding, to write their stories.

Now our city editor really gets busy. As the reporters type out their yarns, the finished stories are piled into a basket on the city desk. It is the city editor's job to edit and write the headlines for these stories.

From 10 until 2 o'clock he edits copy and writes heads. It isn't easy. To write a head you must have just so many letters on a line, your choice of words must be perfect, your English exact.

With a mad burst of energy the deadline for the first edition—12:30 o'clock—is reached. Relaxing, the editor-for-a-day prepares to rest awhile, but his dreams of sweet repose are shattered when the real city editor, John M. Shroeder, gently but firmly points out that the deadline for the final edition is but one hour away! Which means another hour of feverish fretting with words that just won't fit into their proper places.

At last, the final edition is on the press. Then there is a real breathing spell. But later on in the afternoon there is more planning to be done, and more copy to be handled for the next day's paper.

But all in all it was real fun to work one day on The Mansfield News-Journal. I learned some things about the workings of a daily paper that I never knew before, and I believe that I'll remember these things much longer after getting some practical experience on a newspaper.

The job of a city editor involves plenty of hard work and little recognition. The city editor scarcely ever receives a "by-line," yet his work is indispensible to the paper.

Being city editor for a day is great. It's swell. But, boy, am I tired?
